

NATIONAL SERVICE DAY 2017

The George Price Centre for Peace and Development with the help of the Belmopan City Council and students from the History Department and the Regional Language Centre of the University of Belize came together on this National Service Day 2017 to devote some time and effort to beautifying the approach to the George Price Centre. The UB students spent their afternoon white-washing the base of the palm trees lining the road to the Centre's Building.

The nineteenth of September marks the anniversary of the death of Mr. Price, Belize's only Premier, first Prime Minister and first National Hero. It is a day dedicated each year to giving service in remembrance of this icon and other heroes of this beloved country of ours who gave of themselves to make our nation the wonderful place that it is today.

So it is with fond memories of this great man and others like him that we spent some time in service to beautifying this area around the George Price Centre and we look forward to hearing what others around the country have done in service to their communities today, this National Service Day 2017.
